

Case B - extended voltage

The ATC 100B series extended voltage differs from the standard series for a higher isolation voltage that for values up to 100pF reaches 1500V, 1000V for 470pF and gradually decreasing until 300V for the value of 1000pF.

By the parameters provided by ATC it is possible to notice a marked increase in the maximum current that for low and medium capacity and up to about 200/400 MHz appears to be three times higher, while ESR (equivalent series resistance) and SRF (self resonance frequency) remain unchanged.

As an example here some parameters values provided by ATC.
